PENSION COSTS ARE REDUCED

Mothers' Allowances $200,000 Less Than Five Years Ago

Mothers' pension payments in British Columbia have dropped from $601,697 in 1930 down to $389,670 last year, according to figures tabled by Hon. G. M. Web, Provincial Secretary, in the Legislature, at the request of E. E. Whitt, C.C.F., Burnaby.

At the same time administrative expenses have increased slightly, the minister's figures show.

Following is the comparative statement:

| Year | Pensions | Salaries |
|------|-----------|----------|
| 1930 | $601,697 | $14,620 |
| 1931 | $545,541 | $15,716 |
| 1932 | $503,397 | $17,857 |
| 1933 | $488,049 | $21,169 |
| 1934 | $389,670 | $24,621 |

These administrative figures for 1934 onwards include administration cost of the destitute poor and sick and burial of indigents and part of the cost of administering the Infants Act, the minister explained.

The minister denied that budgets are forced on unwilling pensioners, but said suggestive budget cards are provided to each mother.

Provincial Government Proposes New Levy But Needs More Authority

BOARD'S WORK IS UNDER FIRE

Skeena Member Urges Changes in Handling of Workmen's Compensation

Criticism of the functioning of the Workmen's Compensation Board was voiced in the B.C. Legislature yesterday by E. T. Kenney, Liberal, Skeena, who said more attention was paid to conserving the board's funds than to the interests of the workmen.

He cited cases of his own knowledge in which he claimed men had not been treated properly and urged there should be some appeal from the decision of the board.

The levy of 10 and 11 per cent on logging payrolls to pay for compensation was attacked by the member as unfair. No industry could stand such a levy. Furthermore, he thought a distinction in this regard should be drawn as between horse-drawn and hand-logging and the high lead method. The latter was by far the most hazardous.

Mr. Kenney advocated compensation for cases of hernia, now excluded.

OLD AGE PENSIONS
More favorable treatment for people in old age pensions was also a crying need, the member said, and he urged the board paid too much attention to the letter of the act without regard for the spirit.

Application were allowed to drag along for months, imposing hardships on the applicants.

He urged the House of Work Act be changed to include ferryman who now had to work ten hours or more when other occupations were limited to eight hours.

In reference to interest reduction plans he said the government could show faith by reducing the penalties and interest on unpaid taxes from 8 and 12 per cent now charged.

Mr. Kenney listed himself as a firm advocate of the British Columbia highway industry.

BLOCK BURNS IN VANCOUVER

Loss When Wholesale Building Partly Guttled Is Put at Total of $500,000

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Feb. 20.—The building owned by G. B. Gregg and Company, silk importers, and occupied by them and five other firms in the heart of the Water Street wholesale district here, was still smoldering to-day from fire which gutted the basement, first and fourth floors yesterday evening, causing damage estimated at $500,000.

Believed to have started in the basement, occupied by dress and leather goods firms, the flames spread to the first floor before flames arrived on the second floor on an elevator shaft, to mushroom out on the top floor. The second and third floors escaped fire damage.

For a time it was feared the flames might spread to adjoining wholesale fur and clothing establishments on either side, but the danger was averted when part of the roof caved in and flames were able to get at the flames and control them.

No one suffered serious injury, though several firemen were cut by broken glass and two were relieved for a half hour while they recovered from the effects of smoke.

The council considered a proposal to request an amendment to revision of the Patents Act, now before the Senate, which would include plants.

NEW VARIETIES

Turnover Tax Now Ultra Vires of Province, Says Hon John Hart, But He Will Ask That Rights Be Granted

Would Exempt Small Incomes

Extra Revenue Would Assist Solution of Municipal Problem, But Earmarking of Funds For This Purpose Not Proposed

British Columbia will ask the federal government for the right to impose a provincial sales tax or turnover tax, which may permit raising of exemptions on the lower brackets of income tax, it was announced this morning by Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance.

The provincial government, Mr. Hart revealed, had considered imposing the sales tax this year, but had been advised by its legal officials that the levy was ultra vires of the province's power, as it was an indirect tax.

In view of this situation it had been decided to include the sales tax in the sales tax in the B.C. bill on financial matters which will be presented when the province and the Dominion meet to discuss constitutional changes.

Mr. Hart said a very close study had been made of the sales tax possibilities. It was found the province could not impose the levy, without having authority conferred by the Dominion, the tax could be levied by any small merchant who desired.

It was not the intention to ask the Dominion to get out of the sales tax field, but to secure the right for a provincial levy as well, he said.

RAISE EXEMPTIONS
In order to compensate the small wage-earner should the province get the authority, larger income exemptions would be considered. These exemptions might run up to $2,000.

Questioned as to whether the province would apply revenue from sales tax to relief of municipalities, the finance minister said this would not necessarily be the case.

"The municipal situation is going to receive our very closest attention during the coming year but we can make no specific promise until we see just what the realignment—with Ottawa will be. The great object as far as municipalities is concerned, is to relieve land of taxation and methods to do this, end will be reviewed. No doubt, though, any additional revenue received from a sales tax would materially help us in solving the municipal problem," he said.

part now to peak the jump for the northwest ski championships. Mr. Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy ruled an interesting point when he mentioned that the government sought interest on tax arrears and 12 per cent on the sale interest period.

Thomas King, speaking on the same subject later advised the government to maintain the 8 per cent rate. King said he was like other people. He did not like to take money out of the bank where it earned interest to pay taxes.

The Premier knows that he could not name the member for Chilliwack (E. D. Brown, Liberal) as chairman of the marketing board because he was afraid to open the Chilliwack seat after losing the North Vancouver by-election. —Mr. Bruhn.

The House expects to hear a lot more about the municipal situation when Mayor G. O. McEwen, K.C. of Vancouver, speaks to-morrow. McEwen has, in his absence, been the object of attack by several members and is expected to reply in kind.

"Our legislative bodies are the greatest farce on the face of the earth if they are supposed to represent the people of the country and their welfare and well-being." —Harold Winch.

"The first speech from the Throne I heard was full of empty nothingness, the second would have been humorous if it weren't so tragic." —Harold Winch.

Harold Winch calculated that on the basis of the emergency relief program in the United States, it would cost British Columbia $100,000,000 to give the 50,000 unemployed people in British Columbia jobs on public works next year. Mr. Winch's figure was based on an estimated cost of $2.00 per man, taking into account $10,000,000 spent on all relief measures in the United States to put 4,000,000 men to work.

Thomas King, Liberal, told the House there seemed to be a conspiracy against him. He gave the notes of his speech to a reporter and had not got them back. Mr. King proceeded with his speech, however, without difficulty.

Mr. King stated that since most Chinese were either proprietors or partners they were able to keep their shops open all hours and would reply with "no speaks an English" when confronted with him. He proposed that the government should do something to help them.

Many Say Business Spurt In U.S. Coming

Predictions of Gains Following Gold Decisions Heard; Conservative Element Would Have Greeted Reverse Ruling

New York, Feb. 20.—Many business leaders, pondering effects of the U.S. Supreme Court's gold decision, decided to-day it meant more dollars in the bill.

Many were positive the decision ensured added business. A minority used the word, "boom," some merely were hopeful.

A conservative element, however, felt a decision reversing the United States government would have had a much better long-time effect even if it had disrupted business temporarily.

BIG PLANT PROGRAMS

The United States Steel Corporation announced yesterday it had approved a $70,000,000 plant modernization program, and the New York Times said it was thought in some quarters the company had delayed the announcement until the court's gold decision was known.

This sum, to be spent on finishing plants in the largest plant for such work by U.S. Steel in five years.

Reorganization of the subsidiary American Sheet and Tinplate Company, owned by U.S. Steel, will require $15,000,000. The Carnegie Steel Company, another subsidiary, will build a $50,000,000 wide sheet and strip mill to meet demands of the automobile industry.

STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt to-day said a decision on possible legislation to protect the United States Government's gold against any legal suits would await thorough study by lawyers.

Commenting on the Supreme Court's ruling upholding the government's monetary program, Mr. Roosevelt, at his regular press conference, said it would be his duty to determine whether further legislation is necessary.

As the President spoke there already was Capitol Hill talk of legislation to protect the government's gold bonds should receive a premium in several dollars. Many said this issue still concerned remote, however.

The President denied published reports (not carried by the Associated Press) that he would sign legislation to protect the government's gold bonds should receive a premium in several dollars. Many said this issue still concerned remote, however.

DEBATE ON COVENANTS

Meanwhile Senate hearings, Delaware Republicans, while not forecasting the future, said in a statement that the Supreme Court's decision demonstrated "that so far as monetary legislation is concerned, the people must depend on Congress and not on the Supreme Court."

The high court declared the abrogation of the gold standard unconstitutional. The court said the gold standard was a part of the federal constitution. It said, however, that no damages had been suffered by the bondholder in the case at issue. What will happen if a bondholder should go into the Court of Claims seeking to show he suffered actual loss in purchasing the new bonds? The question remains to be seen, in the opinion of many experts.

SEEK LEGISLATION

As administration officials were studying the advisability of legislation to protect the government's gold bonds, two possible steps were suggested unofficially: Revision of the law to prohibit suits in the Court of Claims for additional payments on gold bonds, and enactment of old gold clause bonds for new securities that would not bear such a gold guarantee.

them money they could not afford. Until the government provided a decent standard of living it should not ask workers to make provision for periods of unemployment, he believed.

He proposed an amendment to strike out the contributory feature of the bill.

QUESTION OF DEBITES

The other point on which Mr. Bennett attacked the bill was the clause dealing with industrial disputes.

It provides that where an insured worker is out of employment by reason of a strike or dispute he shall not be entitled to benefits unless he takes no part. He described the provision as "ridiculous" and an attempt on the part of a capitalist government to stifle organized labor.

A few other opposition members also attacked this clause of the bill.

PREMIER BENNETT SAID

The amendment to strike out the contributory feature would destroy the bill. Essence of the bill was contributions.

It was true that wages in some industries were low, said Mr. Bennett, and it was also true people lived in hovels, which was particularly regrettable in a young country like Canada. The insurance scheme was one step in the direction of betterment and the work of the special committee on housing was another.

The Canadian amendment to strike out the contributory feature would destroy the bill. Essence of the bill was contributions.

POLICE CLOSE SEATTLE SHOW

Fourteen Girls and Six Men Face Charges; Audience Estimated at 3,000

Seattle, Feb. 20.—A chorus of boys and a shower of whisky bottles from a large audience, a raiding squad of twenty-three policemen yesterday abruptly halted a "girl show" on the stage of the Empire Auditorium and arrested the entire cast and its alleged management.

Fourteen girls, five men suspected to have been identified with the management, and the orchestra director were taken to the city jail and held on open charges. A large sum of cash, the projection machine and film were seized.

The Order of Eagles had nothing to do with the show, but had merely rented the auditorium, police said.

AUDIENCE TOTALLED 3,000

Acting Chief of Police Walter B. Kirtley, Sergeant A. L. Chaffee, head of the police morals squad, and Deputy Prosecutor E. Gray Warner at once entered the auditorium and arrested the entire cast and its alleged management.

After the first act, a series of indecent motion picture films, a dancer had just started her act, when the signal for the arrests was given by Acting Chief Kirtley. Police rushed on the stage and broke up the show. As the orchestra leader was seized, bottles were thrown from the audience. The rest of the girls, in various stages of dress, were taken into custody back stage.

All were charged with disorderly conduct.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 20.—The daily of every educated and intelligent individual is to direct himself to his duties, to understand their nature and to seek out their causes. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett told students of Queen's University here to-day. Mr. Bennett was delivering his rectorial address.

He spoke as his subject, "Political Problems of Our Day," his speech being the "Ave Atque Vale" of academics whose course is not retained in the heart of expectant youth.

In his honorable capacity, inherited from the Scottish universities after which Queen's was formed, the Prime Minister delivered an address embracing problems of the day. To the students he presented a practical proposition.

They discovered a man attempting to climb the line by which the boat was moored to the wharf. He was evidently exhausted and seemed falling in the water. He was attempting to steal a passage to Vancouver.

The Greig Company suffered the heaviest loss, $100,000 in stock and $75,000 to the building. Vancouver Drygoods Limited, dress manufacturer, lost $125,000 in damage to machinery and dress goods, while Rubin Brothers, clothing, Royal Easting Mills Limited, Ayres Blankets Limited and the Victoria Cap and Leather Company of Hamilton suffered a combined loss of $200,000.

The fire was discovered when Motorcycle Officer Walter Mulligan, passing the building, heard an explosion and saw flames coming through a first story window at the rear.

Unable to reach the top floor and roof by means of extension ladders owing to the mass of telephone and power lines, firemen climbed to the tops of lower adjoining buildings and worked from there. Huge billows of smoke from burning cloth further handicapped the fighters.

A square of firemen remained at the scene all night, playing streams of water on the flames, which still burned stubbornly in several parts of the heavily stocked upper floor.

Trunk Murder Goes Unsolved

Brighton, Eng., Feb. 20.—A coroner's jury to-day wrote an official "find" on "Brighton trunk murder" by returning an open verdict on one of England's most baffling murder mysteries.

The jury found it was unable to reach any conclusion on the death of the woman whose torso was found last June in a trunk at the Brighton railway station.

A host of investigators told the jury they were unable to determine how, when or where the woman was killed and who was not even able to identify her.

Great Britain's noted criminal pathologist, Dr. Bernard Spilsbury, found himself unable to reach any conclusion. He sent a statement to the coroner that he was unable to determine the cause of the woman's death.

CRIME NO. 2

"Brighton trunk crime No. 2" was solved a month after the first. The abandoned body of another woman found in a trunk in a rooming house in Brighton, was traced to a woman known to that of Victor Kane, a Vancouver actress. Tony Kane was indicted for the murder, but was acquitted by a jury. That crime, the "Kane" case.

CHAPTER XXVII

Brian turned. He said, "Oh—hello, Vicky. Come on in, won't you?"

Vicky stood in the doorway. She was staring at Gale, whom she had never seen before. The blue uniform, of course, meant that this girl worked in the mill. A pretty girl. She had been crying and Brian had stood there with his hand on her shoulder. Or was his arm around her? Vicky wasn't sure.

She looked from Gale to Brian and back at the girl. Vicky was in a bit of a daze. She was the only new black hat and the silver shoes and a bit of snow white showed at her throat. Her face had lost all color except for the stroke of crimson that was her lips. Vicky's eyes darkened as the girl's black hat flashed with anger.

Suddenly she remembered Brian had spoken. She shook her head and even managed a smile. She said, "Sorry. I told me my father was here. Since he isn't, I'll have a look somewhere else. See you another time."

The door closed behind her. Gale said, with flushed cheeks, "I'd better go." She gave Brian his hands—

He stuffed it into his pocket. "Please don't go yet," he urged. "Here—sit down." He moved a chair forward. "I'm dreadfully sorry I frightened you, but I hope you'll forgive me."

"Of course. It doesn't matter."

"But it does. I didn't mean to—honest!" The other night you ran away without telling me when I could see you again. That's why I asked you to come here to-day. I wanted to know if we couldn't have dinner together this evening. How about it?"

Gale shook her head. "I couldn't," she said. "I'm the cook at home. Besides, I'm always busy evenings."

"You couldn't manage just once?"

"I'm afraid not."

An electric bell rang sharply in the corridor outside. Gale said, "Oh, I'll have to hurry! I can't be late."

She turned and fled. She hurried through the outer office without glancing either left or right. She did not see Vicky Thatcher, sitting near a desk at the far side of the room. Vicky, who had been elaborately busy with her vanity case, lowered the case as Gale crossed the room.

She said to the girl at the desk, "That's a pretty girl, who is she?"

The stenographer turned to look. "Her name's Gale Henderson," she said. "She's worked here quite a while. Ever since I came anyhow. I like her. She's a pretty girl, no doubt. Gertrude Mulline settled back to work. She thought, 'I'll bet they'll be surprised at home when I tell them about Miss Thatcher sitting here and talking to me, just as friendly as anybody. I'll bet that silver fox face cost plenty, too.'"

Brian Westmore walked to the window and tapped the sill with restless fingers. That was a fool trick, he told himself for the twentieth time. His fault, altogether. Why did he always have to bungle everything? He'd have felt a terrific idiot if anyone else had happened to come to the door just then—Thatcher or Parsons or even Miss Young. The thing probably looked entirely different from what really happened. That was what bothered him. Gale Henderson must have felt the same way. Lord, what a dunce he was! Frightening the girl out of her wits and then embarrassing her.

He raised the window and drew a deep breath of cool air. Well, there was one thing that had been fortunate. If anyone had to come in and see him with Gale when she was weeping and he was trying to comfort her, he was glad it had been Vicky. Vicky was all right. She wouldn't misjudge the situation, wouldn't be curious. Or if she was, at least she wouldn't say anything about it.

Yes, Vicky was a good sport. Brian thought, "I've done a few favors for her, all right. She hasn't forgotten." But he would have to make some explanation to Vicky, just the same.

Red Horner Storm Centre As Toronto Leafs Beat Maroons

DIZZY DEAN

DEAN didn't get his $25,000, but the skyrocketing of his salary from $7,500 to $10,000 in the neighborhood of $10,000 should contribute toward ending the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant pay policy.

Although the Cardinals have won five National League pennants in the past nine years, Braden, Richey and Company are for the first time experiencing some of the heat that is being poured upon them.

The Cardinals got a bargain, in usual, in signing for $25,000 a pair of pitchers who between them won forty-nine games during the regular campaign and the big share of the world series.

They're getting Dizzy Dean, the finest pitcher in the game, and to have him as the most prominent name in the business, dirt cheap at $25,000.

Paul Dean is said to have his salary increased from $10,000 to $12,500.

Now that Dizzy Dean has demonstrated a pitcher who can obtain the most important money, Samuel Braden and Branch Richey undoubtedly will find it difficult to satisfy other stars with the world series promises, however.

That has been their theme song in one of the most successful years ever enjoyed by a major league outfit.

"You might be able to get a little more elsewhere, but with what other club would you be sure of collecting several thousand dollars more in the world series?" they ask their recalcitrant athletes.

The system has worked very well, too, for the Cardinals have fairly won along, without giving more than two players heavy money—the immortal Rogers Hornsby and Frankie Frisch.

And both the Cardinals and the old St. Louis Browns were made managers to reduce the overhead.

Established stars coming to the Red Sox usually are dealt a job like the one just experienced by Joe Malone, the burly right-handed pitcher.

Malone, who returned his parchment to Richey with the question: "Didn't you make a mistake and send the Red Sox my contract?"

Richey's reply is typical: "Malone can hold out all season if he likes. In fact, I wish he would. I believe a season's rest would enable him to start the 1935 season in better condition than he has been in for years."

But Dean has driven the opening wedge, and smaller young lumbars like Joe McDewick have to be satisfied. The Jersey outfielder demands and is entitled to $10,000.

Outside of the talkative Dean, there is no way of telling what the remarkable Cardinals drew last season, but you may rest assured that they were not overrecompensed. Ten reported still unnamed, and Richey Collins, Bill Delaney, Pepper Martin, Jack Rothrock, and the south-paw Billy Malahan and Walker, are among them.

Baseball men call Delaney, the splendid young catcher who was fortunate if he pulled down $4,000 in his first year with the Cardinals, a $10,000 ball player.

Close observers declare that if the aggressive Martin's 1934 insult was forgiven, the baseball world would be amazed at his misfortune.

Dizzy Dean would get $25,000 from any one of the several major league organizations as easily as he throws a ball.

It simply is his misfortune and that of other Cardinals standouts to have landed in St. Louis, where the customers are satisfied with National League glory.

After all there are two sides to the Cardinals story. Braden and Richey are not rich. Their aggregation played to less than 600,000 paid admissions at Sportsman's Park in 1934, or less than half of what several other big-time outfits performed before at home.

Up until the Saturday and Sunday that brought what perhaps was the most phenomenal drive in baseball history to a close, attendance in St. Louis was stumpy.

It took the world series to yank the St. Louis club out of the red.

But still players are entitled to the paid compensation with their talent.

And, in closing, it might be said that it is just as well for the National League that the Cardinals are not operating in New York or Chicago.

Fights With Two Players and Sets New Penalty Mark

Spends Seventeen Minutes of First Period in Cooler; Leafs Win Hockey 3 to 1

N.Y. Rangers And Boston Victors

Reginald Horner, the home-loving young Torontonian who is paired with King Clancy on Leafs' defence, believes hockey games can be won by knocking down puck-carriers hard and often as they sail in for a shot at the net.

Horner's ideas along this line have brought him the tag of hockey's bad man—he is really a mild young chap off the ice—frequent rests beside the penalty timekeeper and not a few fistic encounters with puck-carriers who don't like being bounced to the ice.

It was that way at Montreal yesterday evening, when the big redhead picked up two first fights and fifteen minutes in penalties, more than half the thirty-seven minutes imposed during the game with Maroons and enough to bring his season's stay in the box to only eight minutes short of two solid hours.

SELL-OUT CROWD
Despite Horner's long absence from the ice, Toronto won 3 to 1, getting a goal in each period of the boisterous game, witnessed by a sell-out crowd of 12,000, and holding Toronto's record for team scores in all but the second.

It all added up to a discouraging evening for Maroons, who had hoped to draw closer to Leafs, leaders in the National Hockey League's international division, but instead saw Conny Smythe's team lengthen their lead to ten points.

He was on his way to the penalty box when Steve Evans attacked him, and after the first fight had been quelled, Horner and Marvin Wrenn, who was confused with Evans by the officials, each got majors.

When New York Rangers defeated St. Louis Eagles 3 to 1 at Madison Square Garden, it made the meeting of Leafs and Rangers for the N.H.L. title more probable.

Lester Patrick's great comeback outfit held their two-goal lead in the American division point game, when Boston Bruins, who came from behind to beat Montreal Canadiens 3 to 1 at Boston.

The trouble started at Montreal when Horner boarded Bertie Cain, who was on his way to the penalty box when Steve Evans attacked him, and after the first fight had been quelled, Horner and Marvin Wrenn, who was confused with Evans by the officials, each got majors.

Score First Victory; Coach Lines No. 2 Defeat Macaulay Point Club

On their shining new table in the paint shop, the Melrose four defeated the Civil Service squad in a city league table tennis match, 11 to 5, yesterday evening.

This was the first win the paint boys have registered since entering the league, and great rejoicing resounded through the shop.

The Melrose four got off to a good start, each player taking his first game. Then the Civil Service team hunched up their braces and draped themselves around the table, but they could not overcome the large lead.

7. Chastell and W. McGregor were in form, and staved off all Civil Service attempts to down them. For the clerks Tutill turned in the best performance, collecting two wins.

The games won follow:
Melrose—Chastell 4, McGregor 4, Men 2, Creed 1.
Civil Service—Tutill 2, Colby 1, McCann 1, Baker 1.

Coach Line No. 2 team of battling drivers, after round-hogging their brethren, the Coach Lines No. 1 team, played a side-swipe victory, Monday Point Golf Club four 11 to 5 yesterday evening down the Reginald players' table.

Skinner, Ryan and Jimmy Simpson, the never-fading lights on the drivers' squad, again bumped four opponents apiece into the ping-pong ditch. For the golf club, Simpson, Ryan and Skinner managed to best two of the bus men each in the pinches.

The games won follow:
Melrose—Ryan 2, Wright 2, Norm Walker 2, Fred Burns 0, Dr. Lively 1.
Coach Lines No. 2—Skinner 4, Simpson 4, Grevell 2, Fendry 1.

BATTAGLIA WINS BOUT

Canadian Middleweight Champ Solly Knockout Over Solly Dukelsky

St. Paul, Feb. 19.—Frank Battaglia, Canadian middleweight champion, of Winnipeg, evened his score with Solly Dukelsky by stopping the Chicago boxer in the fifth round here yesterday evening.

The referee stopped the uneven bout in that round to save Solly, celebrating his twenty-first birthday. Incidentally, from further punishment.

When the two youths met in a Chicago ring last year, Dukelsky had the good sense to stay out of range of the Canadian-Italian middleweight's dynamite fists, and he won on points.

Yesterday evening, however, he tried to outcrop Frankie, and went down as early as the second round for a count of eight.

Battaglia kept pouring steaming rights at Solly's chin and body, and his opponent's body with trip-hammer lefts.

When the referee called a halt, Dukelsky was staggering about the ring like a drunken man.

ESKS AGAIN TRIM HAWKS

Edmonton Hockey Team Continues to Hold "Indian Sign" on League Leaders

Edmonton, Feb. 19.—The Seattle Sea Hawks may be the leaders of the Northwest Hockey League and the Edmonton Eskimos next to the cellar, but the Hawks have proved to be the remnants of the Sound City crew, on home ice at least.

Yesterday evening the Hawks hung a 4 to 1 defeat on the league leaders, the third time the Sea Hawks have bowed to the Eskimos in the last three games at Edmonton.

With the Hawks well out in front in the league race, and the Eskimos hopelessly out of the running, the result had no effect on the standings.

Louis Holmes, veteran centre, and Bill Carney, young rookie playing his first season in pro company, turned in for the Hawks' club. Holmes and Carney combined for the first Edmonton goal less than two minutes after the game opened. Carney took the puck, twenty seconds later the puck reversed the procedure with Holmes on the scoring end.

Johnny Sheppard netted Seattle's lone tally early in the second period on a devious cross from Dave Ollie and Harold Taylor, but a minute later Carney and Holmes teamed up again for Holmes to put the Hawks in front.

The Hawks' lead was not to last, however, as the Eskimos for the first time in the period when he counted on Ollie Sheppard's assist.

Lineup follow:
Seattle—Venne; Gilheoly, Houghs; Moland; Hammering, Taylor, Sube; Sheppard, Fredrick, Whitely, Mullen.
Edmonton—McCurdy; Redpath, Mercer; Holmes; Gagne, Carney; Elmsed, Sutherland, Richards, Townsend.

Referee, Andy Moran.

SUMMARY
First period—1, Edmonton, Carney (Holmes), 1:40; 2, Edmonton, Holmes (Carney), 1:50. Penalties: Rimstad, Gilheoly.
Second period—2, Seattle, Sheppard (Gilheoly-Taylor), 3:25; 4, Edmonton, Holmes (Carney), 4:35; 5, Edmonton, Rimstad (Redpath), 12:00. Penalties: Holmes, Houghs.
Third period—No score. Penalty: Gilheoly.

Touring Basketball Nose Out Victoria Blue Ribbons

31 to 29; Visitors Fail to Display Same Dash and Color of Former Bearded Clubs; Finley Stars For Visitors

Victoria's fast stepping Blue Ribbons battled the highly-touted touring House of David basketball team point for point at the Victoria High school gym yesterday evening before 800 cheering fans, only to suffer defeat after five minutes overtime, 31 to 29. Deadlocked at the end of the regulation playing time, 29 to 29, the clubs cut loose with some fast play in the extra period and two free shots by the and Finley gave the bearded boys their victory.

The game was a disappointment to the packed house. With a line-up that was completely new, the Blue Ribbons failed to display the same color and comely that had featured their four previous visits to this city.

Missing was the brilliant nose of Buck Buchanan and the clowning antics of Red Johnson. That is what a good percentage of the fans came to see, and when it failed to materialize they were disappointed.

However, in all fairness to the present team of bearded players, it must be said that they have been handicapped by the loss of their system with deadly effect, and at least half of their baskets were scored with the use of that play. They also play a slow hesitating game that is a wonder to slow play the play. And although they are not fast handlers, the present touring players are not a patch on former House of David stars that have visited here when it comes to fast passing and ball handling.

The Ribbons, although they extended the visitors to the limit, could have played better. Their comely and comely that had featured their four previous visits to this city.

Finley, veteran number of the touring team, was in the scoring column, with the splendid total of sixteen points. A very deceptive player he was, and any time he got anywhere near the basket, a crowd of his bearded was beautiful one-handed attempts.

Martin, too, was in the scoring column, with the splendid total of sixteen points. A very deceptive player he was, and any time he got anywhere near the basket, a crowd of his bearded was beautiful one-handed attempts.

Outside of the last five minutes the game was lacking in any great amount of excitement, and the fans were disappointed to see the touring team cut loose with many wild passes, and during the first five minutes the Blue Ribbons could not come anywhere near the basket with their shots.

Outside Weakness Induces Downturns In Winnipeg Wheat

Winnipeg, Feb. 26.—Shipping outside markets pulled down wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. May 1926 contracts fell 1/2 cent, March 1926 contracts 1/2 cent, and July 1926 contracts 1/2 cent. Getting of profit-takers held values at levels below the previous close.

from the opening. Weakness in all other world grain markets induced the selling. Chicago wheat lower 1/2 cent. Liverpool closed 1/2 to 3/4 off and Buenos Aires at noon was 1/2 cent down.

Poor offers from Argentine wheat exporters resulted in the weakness of the market.

Cash grains stirred from their long inactivity, sale of a few cars of long-grade wheat for export, presumably to the United States, being reported. Prices on the board were 1/2 cent higher. Coarse grains futures followed the lead of wheat.

Would You Marry Your Spouse Again?

IF YOU had to do over again, would you marry your present husband or wife? That is an academic question with which probably all married people have secretly dabbled at times, and most of them have whispered the answer to themselves: "Never. Not on your life. Never again." For each one knows where the shoe pinches, and every husband and wife thinks that no other fault could be so hard to endure, and no other little ways so irritating as those of their own particular Mr. and Mrs. And then if they were given another choice they would pick out mates that were the exact opposites of the ones they possess.

Mr. A, whose wife is fat and frumpy, is sure his No. 2 would be a living picture. Mr. B, whose stomach has been wracked on his wife's nerves, would have some but a-I could to the other. Mrs. C would cut her attention upon a gigolo who would always be ready to step out of an evening instead of a tired business man who wants to sit by his own fireside. Mrs. D, would never again be caught off her feet by a man who was such a romantic love-monger he couldn't resist trying it out on every woman he met. She would look out for one who was as dumb as a chicken on his Adam's apple every time he spoke to a girl. And so on and so forth.

It isn't of course, that husbands and wives don't appreciate each other's good points. They do. But you can't live with an individual, day in and day out, without also becoming aware of his or her bad ones, and rubbing against those continually gets on your nerves and starts you wondering what on earth the first fellow was doing that he didn't get you when you decided that you would like to spend the next thirty or forty years with him or her. He was taking a day off, probably. Or something. Anyway, wouldn't it be grand if you could take your bargain back to the marriage license shop and exchange it for something else, without any fuss or scandal or divorce or alimony? Oh, boy!

Well, it seems that these givings have actually been according to the inhabitants of a small village in Slovakia. There was some irregularity about the issuing of the marriage license and forty-five couples, who had believed for eleven years that they were tied tight and fast to each other for better or worse until death should part them, suddenly found out that they were not hitched together at all, that their marriages were invalid and that they were free to seek new mates.

Can't you imagine what happened? Can't you imagine Mr. Slovakia giving up of joy as he said to himself: "Thank God, I am not going to have to stand being nagged any longer, and this time you can bet I will marry a dumb woman?" Can't you just see Mrs. Slovakia putting on her hat and rushing down to the beauty shop for a fresh wave as soon as the glad news reached her, while her husband was a little away whose refrain was: "This time I'm going to look at a man's hands instead of his profile before I marry him and see whether they are open and generous, or whether they are so tight shut they have a strangle-hold on every penny?"

And can't you fancy the many married couples thinking that the very first thing they would do would be to swap off their old, reliable, battered, bludge for their neighbor's this year's model sports car with streamline effects and glittering new paint?

But nothing of the kind, it appears, happened. Believe it or not, when those forty-five couples were given a second choice in marriage, forty-one of them married their old husbands and wives. Only one couple took advantage of the new deal. And if that doesn't prove that most of the growing most married people do at matrimony in general, and each other in particular, isn't just a sort of domestic indoor sport and a peculiar way they have of amusing themselves, I'll eat my hat.

For here were a number of people who had tried out marriage and who were given a chance to take it or leave it, and they took it and went voluntarily back into its servitude. Here were a number of people who were given a chance to swap partners, and they selected the ones whose every fault and blunder as well as every virtue they knew. And that is a boost for the good old institution of matrimony such as it has not had in recent years.

For it shows that marriage is not the hell and chain it is popularly supposed to be, or else more people would break their fetters. And it shows that husbands and wives are not so disgruntled as many of them pretend to be, or else they would do something about it instead of just talking.

They wouldn't be single again if they could, nor do they want different mates. They just enjoy having a grievance and going on an orgy of self-pity. John cries about over Maria's extravagance, but he is proud as punch over her reputation as the best-dressed woman in their circle. Maria boots upon her breast over John's being wedded to his business more than he is to her, but she wouldn't exchange him and the automobile he gives her for a perfect lover who made her waltz.

And so it goes. Husbands and wives get used to each other's little peculiarities so that they do not notice them, and however much they think they wouldn't, most of them would really marry each other if they had to do it over again.

Uncle Wiggily and the Brave Tree

By HOWARD E. GANN

When Mrs. Longmore, after a big storm, in Woodland, said: "Uncle Wiggily, I'm going to have a new Christmas tree, and I want you to go with me to the store to buy one." The rabbit lady didn't know what was going to happen. Her did not know that the rabbit, who was going to have a new Christmas tree, was going to have a new Christmas tree. Her did not know that the rabbit, who was going to have a new Christmas tree, was going to have a new Christmas tree.

"So you are going adventuring again, are you?" asked Mrs. Longmore as she saw her husband putting on his fur coat.

"Oh, yes," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I'm going to have a new Christmas tree, and I want you to go with me to the store to buy one."

"I'll take her," said the rabbit gentleman. "I'll take her to the store to buy a new Christmas tree, and I want you to go with me to the store to buy one."

"I'll take her," said the rabbit gentleman. "I'll take her to the store to buy a new Christmas tree, and I want you to go with me to the store to buy one."
